

Sarah Cook

Workshop summary

Can neat and tidy theoretical models be usefully applied to the "messy vitality and vital messiness" of the practice of curating? This workshop seeks to address questions of scale (both time and size) of successful presentations of media art - looking at the distinctions between the festival format, the traditional gallery-based six week exhibition, the touring show, and the one-night stand nature of live events.